SOME FUNNY STORIES

Told by Indiana Democrats, of How Money Was Raised

TO ELECT MR. HARRISON PRESIDENT

Congressman Bynum's Tale of Two Men Who Failed to Get Office.

THEY CONTRIBUTED TO THE FUND,

But for Reasons of His Own, the President Rad to Remain Their Debter.

The Democrats of Indiana are much amused at some stories that are being told of the manner in which money was raised for the last Presidental campaign in that State in return for offices that have not been turned over to the contributors. ISPECIAL TELEGRAN TO THE DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, September 19.- Representative Bynum, of Indiana, is in town, and tells some very entertaining stories of the way the administration is dispensing patronage in various parts of his State. United States Treasurer Huston, he says, who was Chairman of the State Republican Committee during the Presidental campaign, went about among the local bosses collecting contributions to the party fund and doling out to each contributor assurances of the amount of patronage to which his individual subscription would entitle Unhappily, the President failed to carry out many of these agreements. One man, for example, gave some hundreds of dollars, besides procuring the indorsements from a majority of the leading Republicans of his town for postmaster, but lo! when the postoffice changed hands but to a comparatively unknown and unsuspected merchant, who dealt in shoes. It took a good while for the defeated candidate to grasp the reason for this miscarriage of plans, but he presently learned that his lucky rival was in the habit of buying his stock in trade of Mr. McKee, General Harrison's son-in-law, and was considered a valuable customer.

In another town a hungry and thirsty patriot subscribed $200 on the faith of getting the postoffice in exchange. The local Grand Army organization, however, which was very strong politically, indorsed somebody else, and the President did not dare to carry out the contract of his campaign collector. This made the $200 man very angry, of course, but he had the shrewd sense to

of the situation, and go to the successful competitor and demand his money back, instead of kicking up a public row and em-barrassing the Republican machine with disagreeable exposures. The victor was equally business-like, and consented to make good the contribution if the other would consent to take a note for the amount. So that is the way the matter stands at

The postoffices are only a part, Mr. Bynum says, of the general system of pur-chase, sale and delivery, which has been in operation ever since the campaign of last year got fairly under way and the calls for money became uncomfortably pressing. The scandal reaches even into the pettiest places that command a salary of a few hundred dollars from the Government.

ANYTHING TO ANYBODY.

What New Jersey Prohibitionists Think Republican Pintform Means.

ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. NEW YORK, September 19.-General Clinton B. Fisk, candidate for President on the Prohibition ticket last fall, was asked to-day what he thought the temperance plank in the platform adopted by the New Jersey State Republican Convention on Tuesday meant-local option, high license. or both or neither. He replied: "This plank is, in my mind, a very good plank for those who like that kind of a plank. A man who is in favor of local option can construe it as for local option, and the man who wants high license can construe it as being in favor of high license. That platform does not say anything. It does not mean anything, and its commits the party to nothing. I was willing to help elect a Legislature which would give us an efficient local option law, but this platform says

George La Monte, the Prohibition candidate for Governor, said when asked what he thought of the platform: "Why, it means anything to anybody, or nothing to any-body." He added that the plank had been submitted to the brewers' attorneys and was pronounced satisfactory. Then it was presented to the Prohibition Republicans and was satisfactory to them. As to the effect of the plank on the Prohibi-tion vote, he said: "I have heard Republicans declare that if the party did not take a decided stand in the matter they would not vote with it, and yet their political bias swaved them at the last. If any good to the Prohibition party results it will be more from a suppression of Republican votes than any direct defection of Republicans to the Prohibitionists."

TWO OFFICERS ARRESTED.

They Are Charged With Acting in a Disorderly Manner.

Police officers Alexander and Davis were arrested last night by Special Officer Caldwell, of the World's Museum, for disorderly conduct. The accused men claim that they may have been talking a little loudly, but they were far from disorderly, and characterize the arrest as an outrage. They were off duty at the time of the arrest, and were allowed to depart without bail, but were ordered to appear at the hearing to-

MACHINISTS TO MEET.

A Call Issued for a Convention to be Held

To-Morrow Night. A call has been issued for a general meeting of machinists, to be held to-morrow evening. The object is to organize those not in a union, and discuss the advisability of forming a trades union. At present some of the machinists here are organized in the Knights of Labor, in which organization they have a national trades district. It is also proposed to attach themselves to the Federation of Labor.

A SCARCITY OF COKE

A SOMEWHAT SIMILAR OCCASION.

The Predicament of a Witness Who Was Rather Too Willing.

ALL THE NEWS FROM NEARBY TOWNS

(SPECIAL THIEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.) CONNELLSVILLE, September 19 .- "There is a scarcity of coke as well as a scarcity of coke cars in the Connellsville region," says the Courier, in its review this week. "The demand has at last become greater than the supply. In spite of the fact that all the utside coke regions have fired up their long idle ovens again, and are putting the product on the market, the Connellsville operators have more orders than they can fill. There still remain a few idle ovens in the region, but these are being fired up as rapidly as possible, and new ones are being projected. Already the production and output is up to the average of the boom times of last fall, and the conditions of trade warrant the prediction that they must soon exceed them. "It is an interesting fact that the iron trade situation at the present time is much the same as that which prevailed ten years ago, when the price of iron was advanced from 2 cents in August to 4 cents in the following February, and when the price of ooke rose from $1.75 to $4.50 in a few months. The boom of 1879 was preceded by just such a duliness as marked the preceded by just such a dullness as marked the present spring, and the improvement began about the same time in the year. It is not probable, however, that the boom of 1889 will be so violent as that of 1879. It is to be hoped that it will not. Such rapid and great advances are sure to be followed by correspondingly radical reactions and consequent demoralization of trade. Better moderate prosperity longer continued. None appreciate this fact better than the iron men themselves, and it is not likely that the folly of 1879 will be repeated this year.

travagant prices as characterized a correspond-ing period ten years ago, but an advance to Si is not at all without the bounds of possibility. is not at all without the bounds of possionity.

The estimated production of last week was 126,
488 tons. This is the biggest week's output, with but one exception, during the present year, and within 1,000 tons of being the largest week's production in the history of the coke region. The shipments for last week were correspondingly large, aggregating 6,400 cars."

Joseph Kraft, also a saloon keeper, was being prosecuted by the Law and Order Society for selling liquor to Eddie Waltnor, a minor, aged 13 years, who was wheeled home drunk. Davis thought to save his friend and testified that at the time in question, he had purchased the liquor and had given it to the boy. The attorney for the prosecution asked Davis if he was willing to swear that he had furnished Waltnor with liquor. Davis replied that he had sworn it.

A BIG DAY AT CARLISLE. The Firemen and Their Friends Turn Out in Full Force. PERCHAL TELEGRAM TO THE DESPATCH. CARLISLE, September 19 .- Fully 40,000 firemen and visitors from all sections of Pennsylvania witnessed the big parade of the fire department of this State to-day. Some 39 bands of music were in line. About 72 companies, handsomely uniformed, arrived during the night and day and by 2 o'clock the procession was formed, being several miles long. The parade was the grandest demonstration of the kind that ever took place in the State.

To-night the centennial exercises in connection with the one hundredth anniversary of the Union Fire Company of this city, took place at the Armory. Several thousand persons participated in the affair. A grand display of fireworks took place after the exercises. The next convention and parade will take place at Chester, September 18, 1890.

Our Stock at our Warerooms ISJUST AS COMPLETE!

We show at the store one of the most complete exhibits of Household Goods ever offered in the city, comprising a full line of all goods we have on exhibit at the Exposition. The large experience we have had makes us doubly keen to the interests of all customers. Their will is our pleasure. We will insure you the pleasant courtesy due any buyer. Come to us, look over our large and varied

FURNITURE

Carpets, Rugs, Lace Curtains, Bedding, Stoves, Ranges and COOKING UTENSILS!

And the many, many things so essential to the proper fitting in comforable style of your homes, and to know just where to place your orders when in need of goods, examine critically our exhibit at the Exposition, and we assure you should you think it worth your while to bestow your patronage on us it shall be as carefully preserved and as kindly looked after as our exhibit is complete.

We then place ourselves before the public as House Furnishers in the strictest sense of the word. We presume you have read frequently the "ads." of other houses, whose claims contain columns of reading matter as the "only house furnishers west of the mountains." Kind reader, we will not worry you. Let us hear what your verdict is after seeing our exhibit, and say who are competent to take the best care of your interests.

HOPPER BROS. & CO., 307-WOOD ST.-307

BET. THIRD AND FOURTH AVES.

N. B .- Take particular notice to the quality and style of workmanship of the Papering done by Crumrine, Bane & Bassett, of 416 Wood street, on our cory little cottage at the Exposition; also the elegant Chandeliers, so complete and in such proper keeping, from the stock of Houston & McShane, No. 19 Seventh avenue, both of which firms we recommend vary highly.
